

The US History End-of-Course (EOC) test continues to assess the US History grade-level expectations (GLEs), which were revised by committees of Louisiana educators during the 2010–2011 school year and approved by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education (BESE) in June 2011. The structure of the test remains the same as it was in previous administrations.

The purpose of this assessment guidance is to provide:

- the structure of the test
- specifications for the multiple-choice and task sessions
- the GLEs eligible for assessment
- links to sample items and other resources

Standards and Grade-Level Expectations (GLEs)

Louisiana's social studies content standards are broad statements of expectations for student learning. To further delineate what students should know and be able to do, each standard is divided into GLEs that define the knowledge and skills students are expected to know at the end of the US History course.

Test Structure

Test Sessions	Number of Items	Number of Points	Suggested Testing Time*
Session 1: Multiple Choice	25 (23 operational + 2 embedded field test items)	23	40 minutes
Session 2: Task	2 multiple choice 1 extended response	6 (multiple choice = 1 pt each, extended response = 4 pts)	50 minutes
Session 3: Multiple Choice	25 (23 operational + 2 embedded field test items)	23	40 minutes

*The EOC US History test is untimed.

Test Specifications

Approximate Number and Percentage of Points by Standard

Standard (Reporting Category)	Number of GLEs on EOC	Number of Points on EOC	Percentage of Points on EOC*
Standard 2 – Western Expansion to Progressivism	8	13	25
Standard 3 – Isolationism through the Great War	6	7	13

Standard 6 – The Modern Age	6	7	13

* Percentages do not add up to 100 due to rounding.

Assessment of Standard 1

Standard 1 (Historical Thinking Skills) contains important social studies content and skills that students are expected to master; however, the content and skills from Standard 1 are necessary to successfully answer items assessed under Standards 2–6. Scores will only be reported for Standards 2–6, but it will be important for students to demonstrate their competency with respect to Standard 1 in order to perform well on the assessment.

Description of the Task

The task requires students to apply discipline-specific reading and writing skills in order to demonstrate content knowledge. While the content is aligned to Standards 2-6, the task also addresses the historical thinking skills delineated in Standard 1.

The task consists of two multiple-choice items and one extended-response item. The items are based on four to six authentic stimulus materials, which are referred to as “documents” in the task. The extended-response portion of the task requires students to provide a written response that will be scored using a 0-4 point rubric. The task asks students to synthesize social studies content knowledge with evidence from the documents provided.

For the EOC US History test, the reading and writing skills required by the task may include some or all of the following:

- reading and comprehending grade-level complex texts independently and proficiently
- citing specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources, connecting insights gained from specific details to an understanding of the text as a whole
- determining the central ideas or information of a primary or secondary source; providing an accurate summary that makes clear the relationships among the key details and ideas
- evaluating various explanations for actions or events and determining which explanation best accords with textual evidence, acknowledging where the text leaves matters uncertain

- determining the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, including analyzing how an author uses and refines the meaning of a key term over the course of a text
- evaluating authors' differing points of view on the same historical event or issue by assessing the authors' claims, reasoning, and evidence
- integrating and evaluating multiple sources of information presented in diverse formats and media (e.g., visually, quantitatively, as well as in words) in order to address a question
- evaluating an author's premises, claims, and evidence by corroborating or challenging them with other information
- integrating information from diverse sources, both primary and secondary, into a coherent understanding of an idea or event, noting discrepancies among sources
- writing arguments to support claims in an analysis of substantive topics or texts, using valid reasoning and relevant and sufficient evidence
- introducing precise, knowledgeable claim(s), establishing the significance of the claim(s), distinguishing the claim(s) from alternate or opposing claims, and creating an organization that logically sequences claim(s), counterclaims, reasons, and evidence
- developing claim(s) and counterclaims fairly and thoroughly, supplying the most relevant evidence for each while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both in a manner that anticipates the audience's knowledge level, concerns, values, and possible biases
- using words, phrases, and clauses as well as varied syntax to link the major sections of the text, create cohesion, and clarify the relationships between claim(s) and reasons, between reasons and evidence, and between claim(s) and counterclaims
- establishing and maintaining a formal style and objective tone while attending to the norms and conventions of the discipline
- providing a concluding statement or section that follows from and supports the argument presented

Description of Stimulus Material

The multiple-choice and task sessions of the EOC test may incorporate the following types of stimulus material:

- an excerpt from a text-based primary or secondary source
- a map or illustration of a globe
- a table or graph presenting numerical data to be read or interpreted
- a timeline, chart, illustration, photograph, historical poster, political cartoon, or graphic organizer

Examples of the types of stimulus materials may be found in the Sample Items documents here and here.

Computer-Based Tests

The 2016-2017 EOC tests will be administered on the same online system that was used to deliver the Spring 2016 computer-based tests for grades 3 through 8 in English language arts and mathematics and the social studies computer-based field tests. Students will enter their answers into the online testing system by clicking on the circle next to the correct answer for multiple-choice questions. When composing their written responses to the extended-response portion of the task, students will type their response box into the box using the typing tools provided.

The computer-based tests include the following online tools, which allow a student to select answer choices, “mark” items, eliminate answer options, take notes, enlarge the item, guide the reading of a text or an item line by line, and access the Extended-Response Checklist. A help tool is also featured to assist students as they use the online system.

- Pointer tool

- Highlighter tool

- Cross-Off tool

- Sticky Note tool

- Magnifying tool

- Line Guide

- Extended-Response Checklist

- Help Tool

All students should work through the Online Tools Training (available in late August) to practice using the online tools so they are well prepared to navigate the online testing system.

Explanation of Codes:

Each GLE is assigned a code with three sections. The first section refers to the grade or course subject. The second section indicates the course standard. The third section identifies the GLE.

For example, the code for GLE US.2.1 has three sections. The first section stands for the course subject, U.S. History. The second section represents Standard 2: Western Expansion to Progressivism. The third section refers to GLE 1: Evaluate the social, political, and economic antagonism that occurred between ethnic and cultural groups as a result of westward expansion.
